

A WARM ONE

The other day my wife was very sick and I sent for the doctor. He said, "The best thing you can do is to send her to a warmer climate." I went to the wood shed and got an axe and handed it to the doctor. I said, "You hit her, Doc, I haven't got the nerve."

He was up before the Judge for larceny and there was no defense. "Have you ever been to prison," asked his honor. "No," said the prisoner, bursting into tears. "Well, don't cry," said the Judge. "You're going now."

Little Girl—(at the theater)—
"Mamma, when are the Indians coming in?"

Mother—Hush, there are no Indians."

Little Girl—"Well, who scalped those men in the front row?"

KIND HEARTED

"Say, Boss," said a husky tramp, can you tell me where I can get 15 cents for a bed?"

"Certainly," answered the kind philanthropist, "bring the bed to me and if its worth 15 cents I'll buy it."

JUST THINK

Levi—"Rebecca before we start for Europe we will put your jewelry in de safe deposit vault."

Rebecca—"But I want to wear it on de steamerboat."

Levi—"Humbog! Suppose you get drowned and your body was not recovered."

Policeman—"You'll be fined $50 for swimming in this river."

Jew—(stretching up his hands)
—I wont pay it. The end.

A gentleman, sitting in a cafe saw a Hebrew acquaintance sitting at a far off table and to attract his attention, called him by name, "Einstein!"

A frantic rush was made by all waiters in the cafe, prepared to fill what they supposed was an order for beer.

The stage needs ventilating more than it needs elevating.
